PROLIFICS, AWARD-WINNING IBM SYSTEMS INTEGRATOR, BRINGS ITS BPM CENTER OF EXCELLENCE TO BOSTON AND NEW YORK

New York, NY – September 14, 2011 – Prolifics, an end-to-end systems integrator specializing in IBM technologies, today announced that it will bring its Business Process Management Center of Excellence (BPM CoE) to both Boston (Thursday, September 15th) and New York (Tuesday, September 20th) as sponsors of the IBM IMPACT Comes To You Roadshow.

In Boston, Benny Higdon, Prolifics' BPM & Connectivity Practice Director will discuss how a BPM CoE helps organizations to develop expert knowledge of key processes; develop a rollout plan for the adoption of BPM technology; provide reporting on process improvements with KPIs to business owners; and integrate BPM with Development and PMO teams and processes. Attendees will learn the considerations for setting up a BPM CoE in their organization.

In New York, Higdon will be joined by customer, Horizon Healthcare, to discuss how a properly staffed and empowered BPM Center of Excellence (CoE) helps Horizon successfully introduce new technology and BPM concepts into the enterprise.

Prolifics will also co-host a CoE speaking session with IBM at the 2nd Annual Business Process Management and Technology Forum and Expo for the Financial Industry on October 5th in New York.

As a systems integrator that runs hundreds of projects sourced from a large group of consultants, Prolifics has its own set of CoEs to ensure and improve the quality of its project execution. Prolifics guides customers from requirements to implementation with project plans. A collaboration and governance model allowing teams to work together using a portal interface to document milestones and deliverables are also key aspects to most projects. Prolifics establishes reporting on the process improvements against KPIs for business owners, and provide hands on mentoring of resources to build internal expertise and skills across all activities.
